Finding Camille

When dutiful and loyal Camille decides to go on a road trip down memory lane with her Alzheimer's suffering father, she must learn to let her father go or risk losing her own chance at a life and happiness.

Camille takes her headstrong father Edoardo, an award-winning war correspondent in the throws of the middle stages of Alzheimer's, on a trip down memory lane, hoping to bring back the past and discover who the "Camille" in his recurring memory, truly is.

As they secretly depart, in Edoardo's 1980's battered campervan, and make their way towards Bosnia, where his most recent work took place, they pick up a lonesome hitchhiker called Leo, who is travelling across Europe with his cello.

On the hunt for who her Father's "Camille" is, they experience the highs and lows of a first road trip together. They humorously bond over cold soup and campfires, toilet breaks and night time wonderings.

BINDU DE STOPPANI trained as an actress at the acclaimed Drama Centre London and went on to study Film Writing & Directing at City University, Raindance and the London Film School.

Bindu wrote and directed two short films: Things I Notice. Things You See, co-produced by Radiotelevisione svizzera (RSI) and Gesundheit!, which was nominated for the Prix Europa Film Festival in Berlin.

She then founded Thursday Films LLP and went on to write and direct two more shorts: Three, once again co-produced by RSI and The Kiss.

Her first feature film Jump, produced by Hugofilm, Manmade Films and RSI, won five Awards at the British Independent Film Festival in London in 2012.

Finding Camille is her second feature film.
